THE GIRL AT THE "GYM."

Boston Globe. Oh, my little lady's lovely
In whatever guise she goes,
E'en in hideous hoop or bustle
She'd be belle to all the beaux.
Pretty gir's are always pretty—
Monstrous modes can no'er belle Leauty's brightness—but my lady
Is most lovely at the "Gym."

She'd bewitch you in the ball room, And she'd stun you on the street; But she'd never so begulle you. Tho's many times you'd meet This my lady, as when working Up the nuscles in her slim, Lithe and little, but athlette. Brave young body at the "Gym."

Like some blossomed bough a-swaying
With each frogrant summer breeze,
Only sweeter, seemed my lady
As the swung from the trapeze;
Tho 'I'd vowed I'd never, never Fall in love—tho' I might skim
O'er thin fee—I "took a tumble"
When I saw her at the "Gym."

its last session, enacted a law for the erection of hn agricultural and mechanical institute for colored people, at Farm, West Virginia.

The building has been completed. Everything is now ready for the school to be put into operation. It is the design of the Board of Regents, under whose control this institute has been placed, that while great care shall be taken that students may receive a thorough English education, yet at the same time they shall be taught the principles which underlie the successful tilling of the goot.

The course of study will embrace: First—A course in language and liter-ature; structure and use of English composition, history.
Second—A course in the natural sciences: Chemistry, physics, physiclegy, hygiene.

Third—A course in pure mathematics, arithmetic, algebra, geometry and trigonometry.

Fourth—A course in agriculture, practical farming, analysis of soil, etc., etc. Fifth—A course in mechanics, tool instruction, joining, wood turning, etc.,

etc.
The school year will consist of five terms of nine weeks each. For each term, $1 00, as initiation fee, will be charged.

The first term will begin May 3, 1892, closing July 15. During the last week of this time, a Peabody state—institute will be held for the colored teachers of the state in the institution building. GREAT SEAS AT SEA.

some Reported to Have Risen One Hun-dred and Fifty-saven Feet. Portland Oregonian, George Hunt, who has filled the position of head keeper at the Tillamook Rock lighthouse for the past four years, arrived here yesterday on his way to Cape Mears, he having been transferred to the lighthouse there, his place being taken by Rt. Peterson, who has been on the rock over four years.

The crew at Tillamook Rock light have had rather an unpleasant experince during the storms of the past six weeks or more, during which time they have had no communication with the shore. Sunday was the first day when have had no communication with the shore. Sunday was the first day when it was possible for any landing to be made on the rock, and the Manzanita came out and landed some supplies and brought Mr. Hunt away. He says that a most terrible gale sprang up on the night of December 7, and continued till 3 p. m. on December 8. The wind blew a regular hurricane, the sea breaking completely over the rock and house.

The two boats kept on the rock were swept away. The platform where stores and visitors were landed, which was anchored to the rock with iron bolts, was swept away, an old steam boiler and engine bed were carried off and the transway from the landing place to the station, though bolted to the rock, was lorn up and destroyed.

on the 20th they experienced a still worse storm. The wind was not so violent, but there was a heavy sea on when the gale commenced, and the waves got up to a tremendous height. twelve feet above this. On the dome is a large ball, perforated with holes, to give ventilation to the lamp.

Salt water—not spray, but "solid" water—poured down through these holes. Of course, the seas swept over the house, but it stood fast. Some water came in, but they managed to keep comfortable. None of them could go to bed, it being more necessary to keep the light burning brightly on such an occasion than at any other time. Mr. an occasion than at any other time. Mr. Hunt says they all felt a bit nervous when the huge seas struck the light and

These screens were locked fast to the railing, and the seas wrenched them back and forth as if determined to tear them loose and destroy the lantern.
